Salvation Army Seeks Court Permit To Acquire Land In The Borough For Children's School

May Be Site Of Proposed Salvation Army Children's School.

The Salvation Army today petitioned Warren County Court to relieve the organization of certain obligations under the wills and written indenture of the late Henry and Ann Cobham. Involved in the procedure is a trust fund, which has increased in value from its original $38,761.06 on February 28, 1907, to more than $110,000.

The petition was presented by Attorney John H. Stewart, representing the Salvation Army, before Judge Orrin Waite, of the Erie county Orphans Court. The Erie jurist was called here specially to hear the petition when Judge Allison D. Wade dis-associated himself from the case because he is a member of the Salvation Army Board.

The petition requests that the Salvation Army be relieved from the obligation of erecting and maintaining any buildings for the purpose, as stated in the wills, "to erect and maintain buildings as a refuge and school for children where practical farming, together with a general common school education shall be taught."

The will provided further that "The children to be taught in a kindly manner to work so that each one of them may attain a high character in his calling and thus become a useful citizen of the Commonwealth. . . . The building or buildings above mentioned to be erected a short distance north of the residence of Stoney Lonesome as such be deemed practicable by the party of the first part (Salvation Army)."

The petition further asks the court for permission to purchase the Lounsbury property located at 109 Market street, and to build an annex to the Salvation Army's present building for the same purpose. The S. A. has an option to purchase the Lounsbury property for the sum of $25,000.

It also was stated that the Board of School Directors of Warren borough "is willing to cooperate with the petitioner to the end that instructional services would be furnished by it for a vocational education program including subjects related to agriculture."

Answer Denies All Margiotti Charges Aimed at Rahauer

Pittsburgh, Aug. 9.—(P)—Chief Justice James B. Drew of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court today halted Allegheny county's investigation of Pittsburgh's city administration.

Drew acted at the request of Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti. He said the high court will convene in special session in Pittsburgh August 16, to hear Margiotti's appeal.

The attorney general asked the court to halt District Attorney William S. Rahauer's grand jury probe of free work charges. Margiotti contended the county's investigation actually would be a "white wash" of Mayor David L. Lawrence's administration.

The Supreme Court gave Rahauer until yesterday to justify his investigation. Rahauer filed an answer denying Margiotti's charges.

Sen. Taylor Trailing In Nip-and-Tuck Ballot Count for Renomination In Iowa

By The Associated Press

Former Senator D. Worth Clark was inching away from Senator Glen Taylor today in their nip-and-tuck race for Idaho's Democratic senate nomination.

In 675 precincts of 839, Clark had 23,882 and Taylor 22,427, a lead of 1,455. A third candidate, Rep. Compton White, had 13,041. During the night, first one and then the other held a slight margin. The race is for a full six year term.

Senator Henry Dworshak, serving by appointment, won the Republican nomination for the four year term. His two opponents, former Rep. Abe McGreggor Goff, and Fentress Kuhn, Boise businessmen, conceded.

The Taylor-Clark contest featured primary elections elections yesterday in Idaho, Nebraska and Arkansas.

Taylor ran for vice president on Henry A. Wallace's Progressive Party ticket in 1948, but this year returned to the Democratic party. Last night Wallace resigned from the Progressive Party because it condemns the U. S. stand in Korea. Taylor's opponents in the campaign accused him of being friendly toward Russia and of associating with Communist elements. He denied it.

State Senator Herman Welker continued to hold a slight lead for the Republican nomination for the six year term. His opponents were Gov. C. A. Robins and Rep. John Sanborn.

Benedictine Priests Assigned New Posts

Latrobe, Aug. 9.—(P)—Thirty-six Benedictine priests will take over new assignments August 18. The Rev. Lanus Berger, retiring as pastor of the Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Greensburg, will be chaplain to the Benedictine sisters at St. Benedict's Academy in Erie.

The Rev. Benedict Schimm was named chaplain to the Benedictine Sisters at St. Mary's.

The order named the Rev. Donald Haggerty as principal of Central Catholic High School in St. Marys.

Preliminary Injunction In the Corydon School Controversy Dissolved By Court

Judge Allison D. Wade yesterday handed down a decision dissolving the preliminary injunction against the Corydon township school board designed to prevent that body from closing a one room school in Corydon and transporting students to a school in McKean county for the fall term.

In his opinion, Judge Wade stated that a court has no authority over the decisions of elected officials where no fraud or corruption exists. If the citizens are not satisfied with the actions of their elected officials, they have the privilege of making a change at the next regular election.

Judge Wade further pointed out that for a court to step into the regular business of a duly elected board, or official would be to nullify the election. For a court to

Public Is Invited To Fire Demonstration

A public demonstration of Warren borough's fire-fighting equipment is slated for this evening, starting at 5:30 o'clock near War Memorial field.

The demonstration will last approximately an hour and a half, and will feature nine phases of fire-fighting, laying of hose, rescue work with the aerial ladder and life net, and extinguishing an oil fire.

The demonstration was arranged by the Fire Committee of Warren Borough Council as a climax to a 75-day intensive training and refresher course for all Warren firemen.

Legion Convention To Back Plan For Universal Service

Philadelphia, Aug. 9.—(P)—The American Legion department of Pennsylvania opened its 32nd annual convention today with Commander Walter E. Alessandrini backing a proposal for universal service—active participation by civilians as well as military personnel—to insure the national defense.

Alessandrini predicted the convention would adopt the resolution instead of calling for universal military training, long a key point in the Legion's state and national program.

Thousands of delegates, alternates and visitors were arriving today for the start of the four-day convention. The official opening, a joint session of the Legion and Auxiliary, is scheduled to night at convention hall. The Rev. Everett J. Clinchy, president of the national conference of Christians and Jews, will speak at the traditional memorial service, and assistant defense secretary Paul H. Griffith will address the convention.

Griffith, a Umontown resident and former state and national commander of the Legion told newsmen his speech will be the first by any top official of the department of defense since start of the Korean war. He said it has been read and approved by President Truman.

Meanwhile, two ex-soldiers from Pennsylvania's hard coal fields campaigned openly for the post of commander in Saturday's Legion elections. Joseph R. McCracken, Kingston, and Michael Onze, Olyphant, buttonholed arriving delegates in an effort to swing votes their way.

The election for western vice commander may produce a real battle. Edward Petrillo, Erie, George C. Dietrich, Castle Shannon, are candidates for the job now held by Warren McCarthy of Claysburg.

Girl About to Wed Is Victim of Crash

Clearfield, Aug. 9.—(P)—A 25-year-old woman died and her fiancé was injured in a highway crash today—the day before they planned to be married.

The victim was Ortha Graffius of nearby Woodland. Her fiancé, Robert Wetzel, of Clearfield, suffered a possible fracture of the hip.

State Policeman Albert Scheib said the couple's auto collided head-on with a dump truck on Route 322 three miles east of Clearfield.

Orvis Jordan, Clearfield R. D. 2, who was riding on the truck, suffered a possible skull fracture and fractured ribs. His son, Calvin, was the driver. He was uninjured.

Miss Graffius and Wetzel were to be married tomorrow evening in the Clearfield Methodist church.

AGITATION FOR HIKE IN ERIE MILK PRICES

Erie, Aug. 9.—(P)—The State Milk Control Commission is studying pleas of farmers and dealers that the retail price of milk in the Erie marketing area be raised from 19 to 21 cents a quart.

The commission heard testimony of dairy farmers yesterday that their production costs have gone up since the Korean war started. They said they are no longer able to make a profit.

One witness, John Barney, president of the Erie-Crawford County Dairy Farmers Cooperative Association, said profits were rare enough before the Korean war but now they are impossible.

Traffic Light Is Being Erected At Jackson Run Corner

Work of installing a traffic signal light at the intersection of Jackson street and Route 62, in North Warren, is under way by the C. Beckley Co., of this city.

The expenses of the light and installation costing $194, was authorized by the Coneywago township supervisors, and announcement that this protection is being added to one of the most hazardous points in the county will be good news to all motorists.

Before deciding to have the light installed the township supervisors held numerous conferences with officials of the State Highway Department, Warren County Motor Club, North Warren Civic Club and other organizations interested in safeguarding the dangerous intersection.

The light, of the flasher type, will flash amber and red at the Jackson street approaches to Route 62, and on the main highway it will flash amber, for caution.

U. N. COUNCIL MANEUVER TO DEFEAT MALIK

Strategy Mapped to Break Russian Stranglehold and Filibuster That Delays Action

ANOTHER RESOLUTION

Lake Success, Aug. 9.—(P)—United Nations Security Council members mapped strategy today to break Russian President Jakon A. Malik's one-man stranglehold and filibuster which has stopped the Council in its tracks.

The Russians were not invited to the informal conferences which occupy most other delegations. The Council recessed yesterday until Thursday afternoon after getting nowhere in one of the most bitter, heated sessions since Malik took over the presidency Aug. 1.

Taking the floor when he wished as Soviet delegate, Malik threw another resolution into the Council, this one seeking to condemn the U. S. Air Force for bombings in North Korea. He did this after making new charges that the U. S. is the aggressor in Korea, dictating the role the U. N. is playing.

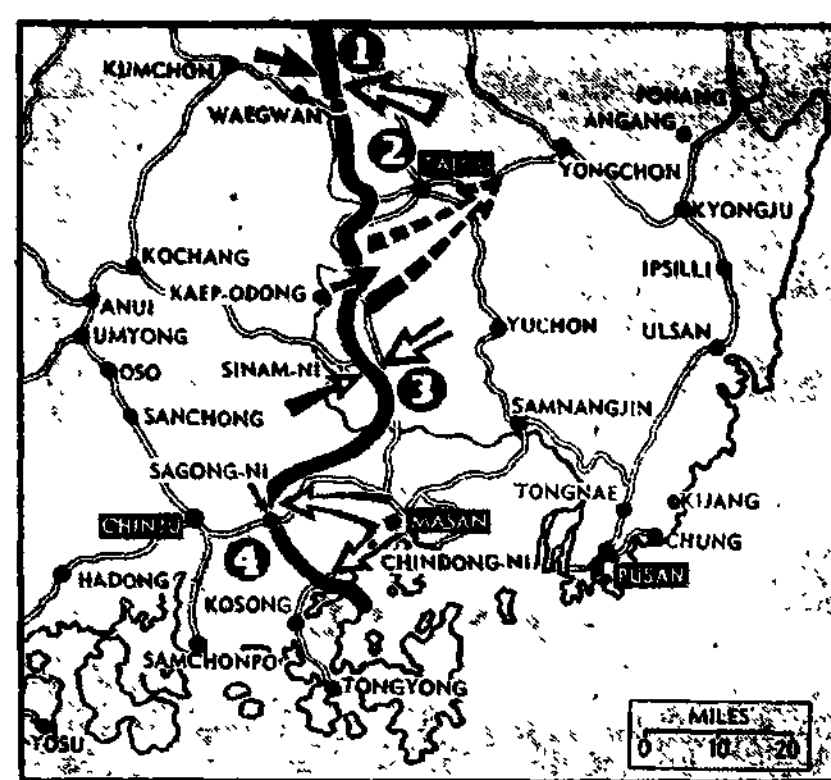

Warden R. Austin, U. S. delegation chief, reported pointedly: "Who hasn't cooperated with 53 other U. N. members in the Korean action? Who could call off the North Korean invaders? What member of this Security Council is assisting the invaders in the Security Council?"

In each case, Austin answered himself: "The Soviet Union."

But Malik refused to allow Austin's resolution of July 31, denouncing the North Koreans and demanding that aid for them be outlawed, to come up for a discussion. He refused to seat the South Korean representative unless the Council agreed to hear a North Korean.

The meeting was still bogged down in a welter of procedure when it gave up until tomorrow. Malik wanted it to meet today and talk about the bombing of North Korea but was voted down 9 to 1, with one abstention—Yugoslavia.

RED BRIDGEHEAD BROKEN—South Korean 1st Division troops have counter-attacked North Korean bridgehead near Waegwan (1), driving Reds back into the Nakdong River. However, enemy thrust from Kaep-dong still threatened (broken arrow) to cut strategic transport hub Taegu (2) from rail communication with Pusan, UN supply port on southeast coast. Enemy's main bridgehead across the Nakdong in the Sinam-ni area (3) was under attack by 24th Infantry G.I.'s and fresh Yank troops. American Marines and infantrymen fighting on the south end of the Chingju offensive line (4) have cleaned out Red flanking forces at Chindong-ni and apparently are ready to roll on in the first big U. S. drive of the war. Meanwhile, the Army's 35th Regimental Combat Team and 25th Infantry troops (north prong of the drive) fought within ten miles of Chingju, Reds main base in the south.

State's Air Raid Warning System Will Have Its First Test During September

Harrisburg, Aug. 9.—(P)—Pennsylvania's air raid warning system, now being organized, will have its first test next month.

Col. Lewis F. Acker, executive director of the State Civil Defense Committee, said yesterday the test will be a mock air raid.

The public will not be involved, said Acker, adding that the test will be strictly for the benefit of the system and its workers. About 8,000 volunteer workers will take part.

Acker also announced that two aircraft observation filter centers are being set up at Harrisburg and Pittsburgh.

North Koreans Use Women and Kiddies To Stop Bombing

Tokyo, Aug. 9.—(P)—U. S. Marine pilots reported today that North Koreans are using women and children to prevent bombing of some Communist troop concentrations.

Leatherneck airmen said when they flew over some villages where the enemy is known to be assembling, the streets were teeming with women and children.

No men or troops could be seen. They presumably were concealed in houses.

The Marines said they refrained from bombing these areas for fear of inflicting heavy casualties on non-combatants.

The carrier-based Leathernecks' first strikes this week were along the flaming southern front. They were supporting ground troops attacking to stop the Red drive on Pusan, last-ditch supply port.

They hit machinegun positions, artillery and mortar emplacement and troops, as well as tanks and transport. Fliers estimated that in one attack Monday they knocked out 40 trucks, two tanks and started large fires at Chingju and Tandong.

Strategic railway and highway targets in North Korea were blasted yesterday in widespread strikes by Air Force bombers.

An air war summary released by Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said B-29s struck key rail yards at Pyongyang as well as important bridges on rail lines and highways channeling war material to the Reds on the fighting fronts.

STEAM BATH REDUCES ROBINSON TO WEIGHT

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 9.—(P)—Ray Robinson, world welterweight champion, resorted to a steam bath today in order to make the 147 pound limit for his title fight with Charles Fusari tonight.

Robinson, four ounces overweight on his first try at the scales, knocked off two ounces for the second weighing, and on third attempt he came in a fraction of an ounce under 147.

Fusari, the Irvington, N. J., challenger, weighed in at 145 1/4. Abe Greene, National Boxing Association Commissioner, gave Robinson two hours to make the weight, but he needed only 30 minutes.

Warren Man Who Gained Fame as Major League Pitcher Is Dead In Tulsa, Okla.

Word was received early today by Klahr H. Klepfer, 5 Brook street, of the death of his brother Edward L. Klepfer, former well known Cleveland Indians' baseball pitcher, which occurred at Tulsa, Okla., after a year's illness.

Mr. Klepfer, who gained fame in the baseball world as a pitcher in Cleveland during a successful season just before he entered the Army for service in World War I, was born in Elk county March 17, 1888, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Klepfer. He attended the Warren public school and during his high school years was an outstanding

Victories Are Scored By Allied Troops Over Communists Along The Entire Korean Warfront

Korean Front: United Nations "limited offensive" punches to within seven miles of Chingju; southern arm swings placid movement in drive to trap thousands of Reds. South Koreans wipe out one central front bridgehead across Nakdong river threatening Taegu; Americans reduce others in bitter fighting. Reds make slight gains to the north; push tight drive by-passing Yondok on east coast.

Air and Sea War: Marine fighters roar into battle in south, battering enemy artillery, B-29s and light bombers yesterday plastered Pyongyang, Red North Korean capital, and other strategic targets. American warships reported to have destroyed 75 per cent of tracks in marshalling yards at Danchon, North Korea east coast rail center.

Lake Success: Security Council members map strategy to choke off Soviet filibuster by Delegate Jakob A. Malik, Council president for August.

Washington: Congress leaders maneuver to get own versions of anti-subversive bill following presidential appeal for legislation against spies, saboteurs and criminal aliens.

Harriman Reports To President On Korean Situation

Tokyo, Thursday, Aug. 10.—(P)—Aggressive Allied forces scored victories over North Korean Red troops all along the Korean warfront Wednesday.

In combat ranging from bayonet attacks to tank-busting, American Doughboys forced the Reds to retreat in the deep south.

South Koreans slammed invaders back across the Nakdong river on the central front.

American attacks in the south picked up momentum and reeled the Reds backward toward ruined Chingju, Communist base.

The Fifth Regimental Combat team was only seven miles from a link-up with the 35th Regimental Combat team.

The juncture may trap many Red troops. The Americans had been bogged down for two days near Chindong. They jumped off before dawn Wednesday on the new attack. Marines were rolling ahead with them.

Defenders of the Nakdong river line to the north showed the Reds out of two river crossing bridgeheads. The U. S. 24th Division herded others into an open spot from the hills and poured artillery shells into them.

Serious threats to the important Taegu area on the central front were eased by the American and South Korean successes. The cheering news was given in a U. S. 8th Army communique issued at 6:30 p. m. (8:30 a. m. EST) Wednesday.

The close fighting took place in the south. U. S. soldiers, clashing (Turn to Page Eight)

Son of Prospect Street Family May Be Warren County Casualty In Korean War

Warren county's second casualty report from the Korean campaign lists as missing in action Pvt. Walter Menard, 20 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Menard, 436 Prospect street.

Listed as missing in action in Korea in an earlier report was Pvt. James Hunt, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Hunt, of the Big Four road, Russell.

Young Menard, serving with the Signal Corps, enlisted in the Army in October, 1946, and was assigned to Newark, N. J., for early training. Later he attended and was graduated from the Signal Corps School in Augusta, Ga.

After a short leave at home with his family, he went overseas in early June, 1949, assigned to the 24th Division in Tokyo, Japan.

Mrs. Menard told the Times-Mirror today she had no word from her son since in June, but had assumed he had been sent to Korea when press and radio dispatches carried frequent mention of the 1st Cavalry outfit and the 24th Division.

The brief message she received from Department of Defense officials last evening merely listed him as "missing in action in Korea as of July 16", with details in a letter to follow.

His greatest enemy is a tattered stuffed monkey that hangs from a wall and bears the sign "specialists on gorilla warfare". For some reason Moe developed a frantic hate for the silent monkey leering down at him. Several times a day he comes into the office just to bark at it.

"But if that monkey ever came untied and fell on him," grinned Kinney, "old Moe probably wouldn't quit running until he reached Japan."

The Korean war has upset the plans of many people. But I think Cpl. Richard Whitson of (1206 Cypress Terrace), Rockport, Ill., had the most unusual objection to it.

Sitting in a tent and looking out across a rainswept field at some T-6 air control planes he helps service, Whitson said dryly: "I am supposed to get discharged next week. And this darn war (Turn to Page Fourteen) his duties have been strictly limited to ground observation and security patrols.

"He won't make any more missions," said his present owner, Sgt. Daniel Kinney, (68 Concord St.) San Francisco. "He's really got combat fatigue — he shakes all over now every time he goes up in a plane."

But Moe doesn't like war on the ground much better. The soldiers sometimes tease him by pointing their carbines at him. Each time Moe barks worriedly until the gun is put away.

Moe wears Sgt. Kinney's dog tags and there is a deep and real attachment between them. At the sergeant's command Moe will sit up, roll over, shake hands, speak or retrieve anything from a rock to a baseball bat.

BY HAL BOYLE
A FIFTH U. S. Air Force base in Korea—(P)—Leaves from a war reporter's notebook: :
Moe, America's most veteran combat dog, has been retired from the air wars by old age and battle fatigue.

The peppery little black and white mongrel has spent six years with the air force. He was first picked up in Australia by Lt. Jack Coghlan of Longview, Texas, and later flew 25 combat missions in the second world war standing in the catwalk of a Douglas Havoc Bomber.

In the years since then Moe has lived on practically every air base in the Pacific and had half a dozen or more owners. He is known by name to hundreds of airmen in the Far East. Since coming to Korea

How Hudson, with exclusive recessed floor, brings you the world's Best Ride

HUDSON

"Step-down" design, with its recessed floor, brings space between frame members, which is wasted in other cars, into Hudson's passenger compartment. This results in America's lowest center of gravity (and full road clearance) for a smoother, steadier, safer ride than is possible in any other car!

OTHER CARS

Floor is on top of the frame, so the vital space between frame members is not available for passenger use. This creates a higher center of gravity which results in less stability, less smoothness as you ride, particularly on curves, in cross winds and on rough roads.

Blood Test For All Residents of State New Defense Plan

Harrisburg—(AP)—Every person in Pennsylvania will be given a blood type test under plans approved today by State Civilian Defense leaders.

The mass blood typing was decided upon at a medical defense meeting conducted by Col. Lewis F. Acker, state defense director. The idea would be to equip the Civilian Defense set up with blood types of all individuals so that it could move swiftly in event an emergency required wholesale transfusions.

The State Medical Society will undertake the blood typing job. It already has plans underway for the assignment.

On another medical front, plans also were pushed to maintain adequate medical and nursing services in Pennsylvania in the event doctors and nurses are called for military service.

Dr. Norris W. Vaux, state secretary of health, predicted that a general national mobilization would leave the commonwealth "with a serious shortage" of both doctors and nurses.

He disclosed that the state, as well as other agencies are working out plans to offset such a condition should it occur.

A Medical Society spokesman said tentative plans call for mass blood typing to get under way by Oct. 1 with school children as the first group. Parents will be encouraged to visit the schools and have their blood typed at the same time.

After blood typing is completed in the schools the program will be extended into industries and later into smaller businesses.

Each person, whose blood is typed will be given an identification card showing his blood type.

The Medical Society will be assigned in the task by the State Nurses Association, the Red Cross and commonwealth agencies.

$5,000 Barn Fire Loss East of Corry

Corry Journal: A medium sized barn and a granary were burned to the ground late Monday afternoon on the James Woodworth farm on Columbus, R. D. 1, a rural road off the Columbus-Blue Eye road.

Columbus firemen were summoned but the blaze had such a start that they could do nothing toward saving the barn, granary or any of the equipment.

Firemen estimated the loss at $5,000, saying that in addition to the barn and granary, a new tractor and a truck were lost in the flames.

Mrs. Woodworth stated one of her children and an unidentified man who was working on the road a short distance from the barn, discovered the flames about the same time, at 4:30 p. m.

Mr. Woodworth, who works at the Corry-Jamestown plant in Corry, had been farming on a part-time basis and had only recently completed his haying. Although the exact cause of the blaze is not known, the flames are believed to have started from spontaneous combustion in the hay.

Fortunately, three heifers which were pastured in a nearby field escaped the fire.

Mr. Woodworth stated the barn was covered by insurance but the status of the policy has not been cleared yet.

Heavy taxation may impair economic incentive, making people less industrious or enterprising, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Miniature silver flower pots, with silver horseshoes and orange blossoms were used as favors.

Best wishes and many beautiful gifts were showered upon the bride-elect.

The RANGE DOCTOR

by OSCAR J. FRIEND

Chapter One

IT WAS LATE of a Saturday morning when Robert Logan got off the stuffy daycoach at Clearwater and set his two shiny suitcases down in the shade of the red-painted depot. A trifle above medium height, slender of build but with a pair of muscular shoulders which implied a youth of manual labor, he was nicely dressed in a dark-brown business suit. He carried himself with ease and poise, and there was a certain air of quiet dignity about him which seemed a bit odd in one so young.

He removed his brown derby hat and wiped his perspiring brow as he surveyed what he could see of this sprawling Panhandle town. So far he was not much impressed. The deeper he got into this Texas country the more dismal seemed the prospects. Griggsby had written him what to expect, but two thousand potential patients on a sheet of paper seemed a lot more than two thousand healthy people scattered over several hundred square miles of rangeland.

At the back side of the station six stringy, rangy mustangs were hitched to a weatherbeaten stagecoach. A grizzled man wearing lace boots and an armed express guard were busily loading express shipments, mail sacks, and the luggage of passengers on top and in the boot. Logan approached.

"Is this the stage for Gila City?"

The sweating, grunting driver glanced at him and answered without halting his work. "Shore is, younker."

Logan handed his ticket to the driver. "My name is Logan, and I'm stopping at Gila City. Please handle that tan suitcase carefully."

"Logan? Oh!" The driver's impatient attitude altered, while the express guard stared at the passenger curiously. "So you're that young medicine doctor Tom Griggsby's been expectin'?"

Logan entered the coach and sat in moody silence for most of the twenty-mile trip. He almost wished he had not come back to this rough and tough frontier country. He should have stayed in St. Louis, or returned to Little Rock to enter into practice with his preceptor, Dr. Devere. But he couldn't have done Tom Griggsby that way.

The sun was westerling rapidly when the overdue stagecoach rumbled into town like a small avalanche. Amid the dying thunder of hoofs, a cloud of red dust, and the squealing of tortured brake shoes the driver pulled up before the Alamo Hotel with a flourish. Litterers quickly congregated to view the new arrivals. Folks from ranches and hills thronged the street, marketing and trading, for Gila City was essentially a Saturday town. Wagons and riders rattled and jingled their way about their affairs. Everywhere was laughter, noise, color, action.

Logan descended in turn from the stagecoach and fished his suitcases from the pile of luggage built up at the edge of the sidewalk. "Yonder's the newspaper office, Doc," called out the driver, pointing with his chin. "Just a couple doors from the hotel." Logan nodded his thanks and made his way through the crowd. The false-fronted structure of the newspaper office, the front of which was oddly pockmarked with bullet holes. Logan noted this grim significance and raised his eyes to the screaming sign painted above in bold, black letters.

He carried himself with ease and dignity, a bit odd in one so young.

THE GILA NEWS

THE ONLY NEWSPAPER ON HORSE-SHOE RANGE
WE GATHER ALL THE NEWS—AND WE PRINT IT

A sudden shout brought Logan's gaze back to the entrance. A gray-headed, wiry little man was hastening out. A carpenter's apron, worn with the bib down, about his waist, a pencil stuck behind one ear, sawdust in his shaggy eyebrows, and a beaming smile on his face, the editor limped forward to greet the newcomer.

"Bob, I missed you. I was making so much noise myself I didn't hear the stage. Welcome to your new home, son."

A lum, gathered in Logan's throat. "Uncle Tom," he choked, dropping both luggage and dignity as he held out his hands.

They embraced in a headlike hug that caused bystanders to gawk. Word flew from lip to lip that the young doctor so prevalent in the editor's conversation had at last arrived.

Soberly Logan drew back and looked accusingly at the older man. "I thought you'd comdle of things and still poking your finger into other people's business. Look at those bullet holes."

Griggsby laughed, bent over to pick up one of the suitcases. "Just souvenirs from outraged victims of the Press over at Frigole Flats. Sort of gives the office an antique air. Don't pay any attention to 'em. Come on in, son."

Logan followed into the building where he found a new partition closing off a generous front quarter of the house in process of erection. A red-headed youth was carrying tongue-and-groove stock forward from a pile of lumber in the alley.

"Excuse the mess, Bob," Griggsby apologized. "I wanted to finish your office before you arrived, but we had to get the paper out yesterday. We run every Friday like we did in Blue Eagle. This is Nolly Sims, a better printer's devil than you were. Nolly come shake hands with Dr. Logan."

Logan greeted the lad with a warmth that surprised the boy and then turned his gaze on Griggsby as the abashed, strapping resumed his work. "Still championing the underdog?"

"Nolly's a good boy," defended Griggsby. "He sleeps in the back room where he can watch over things for us. I'll tell you about him later. Sorry I couldn't come to Saint Louis for your graduation. Where's your diploma? I want to see it."

"Just a minute," said Logan firmly. "You're practically crowding yourself out of here to build me a front office."

Johnny Knows Mom's 'Please' Means 'Stop . . . or Else'

HERE'S a vocabulary of parenthood and real meaning of the phrase—to often used:

"I've told you for the last time." Johnny probably wishes he had heard that particular command for the last time, but, of course, he hasn't. It's just easier for a parent to call it the "last time" than to try to remember how many times he or she has given the command in the last half hour.

"If you're a good boy . . ." is a way of giving a promise that parents hope will give them an extra dividend. Johnny will get whatever has been promised if he is good or bad—but Johnny isn't supposed to know that.

"Teasing isn't going to do a bit of good." That's what parents say just before giving in. If teasing wouldn't do a bit of good, kids wouldn't tease so much.
"Well, well, see about it!" actually means: "Run on and leave me alone." It usually works for a little while because it is one of the hardest adult answers a child ever comes up against. And he comes up against it constantly in his dealings with grown-ups.

PARENTS SAY ONE THING, MEAN ANOTHER

"Run along and play now" means "Get out of my way." Mine doesn't really care if Johnny plays or not, just so he gets out of sight and out of ear-shot.

"I'm surprised at you" always means that Johnny has been doing something he shouldn't. No parent ever admits being surprised by a child's being exceptionally good about anything.

"Please don't, darling," is a company manners substitution for "Stop that instant or I'll . . ." but it's rarely as effective as the latter.
"All right—but be careful!" is the way parents have of shifting their responsibility for a child's safety into the laps of the gods. This is used when they give him permission to do something they know is dangerous.

For GOOD-ness Sake

By Betty Rice

"In the comprehensive National Blood Program of which the Warren County Red Cross chapter is a participant, the Red Cross can serve as the channel through which the humanitarian impulses of the American people, with guidance from outstanding scientific and medical leaders and with the cooperation of both government and private agencies, may effectively serve the interests of our nation's health during peace and of our national security in a great emergency to the end that all of our people may benefit from our joint effort... to the end that no man, woman or child, no soldier, sailor, or civilian may die for lack of life-giving blood or blood derivatives"... so speaks General George C. Marshall, president of the American National Red Cross. Unfortunately, in some areas, hospitals and medical men have not seen fit to accept the far-reaching possibilities of the Red Cross Blood Program. Unlike Warren with its alert medical association and its General Hospital which accepts with gratitude the supply of Blood Without Cost, there are, in some communities, situations which arise that are most alarming. Take for example, the patient from Warren County who is hospitalized in a non-participating hospital. Through the local Red Cross Free Blood is available providing the hospital and the doctor in charge be willing to accept same. But—if that hospital maintains a private money-making blood bank and in addition to charging for the blood insists that the patient's family supply donors to replace the blood paid for and used... and if that hospital flatly refuses to allow the patient to accept the Red Cross Blood... Nothing can be done about it. Your Red Cross Chapter is ready and willing to help at all times. However, such an instance has already occurred... Not in Warren but in a non-participating hospital. We point out how fortunate we are in our community to have a truly humanitarian group of men and women in our medical society and in charge of our hospital.

Morning Roundup: For the consideration of the Park Committee of borough council we would like to suggest again that before another Playground season rolls around at least one or two sets of steps be erected at Beaty leading from Conewago avenue level to fields below. That hill is just a little too steep for many folks to negotiate, and those ball games really can't be enjoyed to the full standing upon the high embankment... Ted Day, former Warren resident, and more recently in business in Corry, was renewing acquaintances here Tuesday... Tomorrow is blood donor day, and if you have not already signed up to give a pint for the good of the cause you can make last minute arrangements by calling Red Cross Headquarters 2928. Giving a pint of blood is a very interesting and pleasant way to help an important project, and leaves no ill effects. We know from experience. Pick up that telephone now and say you will be a donor... Corry had its quota of 115 filed for today's visit of the Bloodmobile... Area residents are still talking about the beautiful display of Northern Lights Monday night. Beginning around nine o'clock and lasting until midnight the Aurora Borealis flashed through the northern sky for several hours... It appears certain that Company I will be headed for Camp Atterbury, Ind., prior to Sept. 14, inasmuch as orders show all units will be mobilized at that camp by that date. Actual induction of the units is expected about September 7th. The dates were given by Col. Kenneth W. Momeyer to officers of the 112th at a briefing at Indiantown Gap Monday prior to departure of the units for home.

Lander Town Pump And Honor Board Will Be Rebuilt

Lander, Aug. 9.—Lander Unit, Upper Allegheny Young Farmers Association, holding its regular meeting at the school building, appointed Myron Ludwick and Russell Thelin as a committee to work with other organizations in the community on the project of rebuilding the town pump and Honor Roll board.

Fifteen members were present at the session, with Milton Swanson elected to membership in the organization. There was also discussion concerning erection of a signboard containing pertinent facts about the community.

It was announced that information has been received from the state organization suggesting that locals have their election of officers in October so that new officials would be installed in time for the semi-annual session of the state group in January.

Members were reminded of a change in the September meeting, to be held on the 11th, since the regular meeting date falls on Labor Day. Also planned was a social meeting and cornroast on September 1, with families of members invited.

Victories Scored By Allied Troops Over Communists

bands before charging with fixed bayonets, killed 40 North Koreans in a sharp engagement.

The communists said the Reds apparently were withdrawing toward Chingju. The U. S. 35th Regimental Combat team put patrols to within seven miles of the burned-out city.

Correspondent Hal Boyle reported U. S. First Cavalrymen chased after a battalion of Reds in the hills two miles below Waegwan, 15 miles northwest of Taegu, the South Korean republic's emergency capital.

The Communists had waded the river in the night and commanded the road to Taegu with machine-gun and mortar fire from a 1,200-foot ridge.

North of Waegwan, South Korean troops, drove the invaders back to the Nakdong river. One hundred fleeing Reds were mowed down by their own panicky comrades when they tried to get back across the river from the Allied east banks.

Some of the river crossing Reds on the Allied side of the Nakdong six miles below Changnyong, were driven out of high ground by the Americans. Changnyong, is 23 miles southwest of Taegu.

Late front-line dispatches from the Changnyong bridgehead said the bulge there had been reduced by U. S. troops who drove the Communists out of high ground. These dispatches said the Reds were being herded in exposed positions on a slope near the river.

Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, Eighth Army commander, had ordered the invaders at this point wiped out by nightfall.

The Allied central front is manned by the N. S. 24th Division reinforced by newly arrived Second Division elements from Ft. Lewis, Wash., the First Cavalry and South Korean troops.

The foremost Red threat reached to a dozen miles from Taegu, main supply terminal on the road-rail corridor leading northwest out of Pusan Port, the big U. S. base.

In the extreme south, where the first U. S. offensive effort bogged down two days ago, tank-led marines and doughboys got to rolling again—but laboriously.

They drove past North Korean dead for gains measured in yards, pushing toward burned-out Chingju, a dozen miles ahead.

The break-through in the south by the Marines and infantrymen was the second attack ordered personally by an American general in Korea within a 24-hour period.

Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, disturbed by failure of his extreme southern arm to keep up with his northern flank, advancing on Chingju, went to the front to find out why.

He ordered a night attack—the first on the southern front. The Marines and Fifth Regimental Combat team broke out of the outcreek with the ordered night attack and caught the Communists off guard.

The southern arm of the American drive started a pincer swing that may trap thousands of North Korean troops. Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported the marines surged through a gap on the flanks of the U. S. Fifth Infantry and both units pushed along the road toward Chingju from positions just west of Chindong.

Harriman Reports to President on Korean Situation

His fill-in on the situation, particularly the political aspects. Harriman arranged to meet reporters in a formal news conference later in the day.

At the White House, he said that both MacArthur and the troops in Korea "are confident they can hold and be able to clean those fellows out in time when they get buildup."

He previously had expressed the same sort of optimism in talking with reporters at the airport.

New York, Aug. 9.—(P)—A touch of weakness in auto stocks highlighted an indecisive market today. Yesterday auto stocks surged ahead in the wake of news of General Motors' lavish $250 special dividend. Today GM dropped back around $1 a share and Chrysler and Studebaker smaller amounts. Elsewhere the trend was fogged by small price movements and slow business. Gains and losses hit a fairly close balance with changes limited to 50 cents a share or less for the most part.

Wallace Is Through With Progressives

New York, Aug. 9.—(P)—Henry Wallace resigned from the progressive party last night because it condemns the American stand in Korea.

The action completed a split that began three weeks ago between Wallace and the party that organized to run him for president in 1948.

Three weeks ago, Wallace made public his own support for the U. S. and U. N. actions in Korea—while the party's national committee issued a statement opposing the American action.

Wallace said then he would wait for action of the party's rank and file before making a further move. Since then, the Progressives' state party organizations have voted overwhelmingly to back up the national committee.

Wallace said he had no immediate political plans. He gave his decision in a two-paragraph note to C. B. Baldwin, his long-time political aide and the Progressive party secretary.

ture, and that such educational program can be carried on in connection with the Youth Activities Program of the Salvation Army.

The request for a court ruling on the petition is the outgrowth of a meeting here last April 27, as reported in the Times-Mirror when Lt. Col. G. Blair Abrams, of New York, secretary of the board of trustees of the Salvation Army, met with the local Salvation Army Board.

At that time, he reported the trust fund has increased in value during the past 43 years from the original $38,761.06 to $110,124.25. He said the Salvation Army, as trustee of the Cobham endowment, was able to show this substantial increase through wise investments, and also because no fees were levied for services rendered.

After hearing the report, the local Salvation Army Board adopted a resolution declaring that the trust fund should be put to use as soon as possible, and authorized the officers to develop a practical plan as soon as possible.

Answer Denies All Margiotti Charges

(The facts) "are based on irresponsible, anonymous communications alleged to have been had with unknown persons."

Rahauer declared he has never tolerated vice in Allegheny county nor had he given Mayor David L. Lawrence secret grand jury information in 1940, as Margiotti asserted.

Denying Margiotti's assertion that a Rahauer probe would be merely a white-washing job, Rahauer stated:

"I will vigorously conduct the current grand jury investigation and prosecute to the full extent of the law all persons against whom indictments are returned."

Rahauer opened the third day of the grand jury probe today. Meanwhile, state police, acting under Margiotti's direction, continued their own investigation of Pittsburgh's "free work" scandal.

The state police, some of them from the Greensburg substation, have been working on the case for several days.

After the meeting, Ernest Gross, A. U. S. delegate, said a number of courses are possible to meet Malik's obstruction.

The most extreme, he said, would be to change the rules of the Council of electing a president and make them effective immediately—virtually throwing Malik out of the chair.

Another extreme move—he stressed—these are possible but not probable—would be to have no more meetings this month.

New Executive For Girl Scout Council Takes Up Her Duties

Mrs. James Conner, recently returned to the United States from Puerto Rico and currently house-hunting in Warren, will take up her new duties with the Warren County Girl Scout Council the first of September.

The newcomer will hold the post of executive director of the local council, succeeding Miss Cecilia White, who has been serving the organization as general secretary.

Mrs. Conner is the wife of an Episcopal rector, now serving as an army chaplain and just recently assigned to Japan. The Conner family had been recalled to the west coast and was preparing to sail for Japan when the current Korean situation developed and the army officer was sent on alone.

The new executive director has a splendid background in Scouting, serving as a leader, lone troop consultant, executive director in Martinsburg, W. Va., camp director, and as training committee chairman in Puerto Rico for a two-year period. While her husband served as an Episcopal missionary in Puerto Rico, Mrs. Conner held the position of director of Christian education in the island's Episcopal field.

Not entirely a newcomer to this section, Mrs. Conner is the daughter of Dr. Troy Gillette, well known Corry physician.

Seek An Early Vote On Control Bills

Washington, Aug. 9.—(P)—House leaders hoped for a final vote today on a compromise bill that would give the president standby power to impose rationing.

Worked out late yesterday by the House Banking Committee, after a week of debate in the house itself had produced no results, the compromise generally follows lines of a bill approved by the Senate Banking Committee.

It also coincides with the type of legislation the president has indicated he would accept. It contains no mandatory provisions and no "trigger" clauses requiring the president to use the powers before he wants to.

Some of the details still are to be worked out by the house committee at a meeting today, but yesterday's 21 to 1 vote presaged clear sailing in the house.

The films were taken by Jerry Waxman who has kindly consented to present them before the Jaycees and friends.
